

A COUNTRY JOURNEY GUIDE

OMAN / FIVE CHAPTERS / ONE ROAD

The Mainland Crossing

Mountains. Water. Desert. Coast. Then all the way south.

JOURNEY NOTES / 02

five chapters, one road.

The Mainland Crossing is a 14-day journey across Oman, following the long road from Muscat all the way south to Salalah. It begins among the peaks and old villages of the Hajar Mountains, then trades altitude for canyon water, desert silence and the shifting surf of Oman's east coast.

From there, the road cuts through the white flats of Bar Al Hikman, the wild landscapes of Al Wusta and some of Oman's emptiest coastline before finally reaching Dhofar. This is Janoob at full pace: mountain guesthouses, remote camps, long drives, shared meals, saltwater mornings and campfires far from the obvious stops. Fourteen days to cross Oman, one landscape at a time.
